AMERICANS, FEARING MOBS, FLEE DRESDEN

Many Reach Berlin After Escaping in Red Riots.

Special Cable to The New York Herald. Copyright, 1922, by The New York Herald.

Many Americans reached Berlin today after fleeing from Dresden, where the riots by Communists and unemployed resulted in threats against all foreigners when the big hotels were besieged. Those arriving here said that when the riots swept through the town they took refuge in the Europe Hotel, which was soon surrounded by an abusive mob.

The situation was saved by the commotion of a squadron of mounted police, who with sabres and a downpour of rain which helped to disperse the rioters. Stores, especially confectionery shops, were plundered. An exodus of foreigners followed. The Communists moved against foreigners follows the continuous anti-foreign activities in Munich by the Nationalists.

Family Opposition May Halt Wedding of Jerome Murat

Prince's Marriage to Daughter of General Scheduled for Next Monday.

Special Cable to The New York Herald. Copyright, 1922, by The New York Herald.

Paris society is much concerned over the obstacles being placed in the way of young Prince Jerome Gaetan Joachim Napoleon Murat, who, contrary to his family's wishes, announced to-day that he intends to marry Mile. Nicole de l'Espee, daughter of a retired French general. The ceremony is scheduled to take place in the fashionable church of St. Philippe du Roule on next Monday. But in the highest society circles, where the Murat family's edicts are spoken in whispers, the greatest doubt is expressed as to whether young Prince Jerome will carry the day.

So vigorous is the family opposition that Jerome's relatives to-day telephoned the Paris newspapers pleading that no mention be made of the forthcoming marriage, although they agreed that the Espee family is honorable and respectable.

The whole trouble seems to have arisen from the fact that Prince Jerome was born after the death of his grandmother, who left 200,000 francs to the Espee family, a member of the family. Apparently financial pressure is being exerted, as legal journals to-day published a decision of the first chamber of the Paris Court of Appeals sustaining the appointment of a lawyer and counselor for the young Prince, and without whose consent Jerome is not to be allowed to carry on any financial transactions, nor may he place mortgages on his potential estate or make any property engagements, thus virtually cutting off the young Prince from any immediate share in the Murat estate.

Mr. and Mrs. Samuel A. Weidman, whose home for some time has been 23 East Thirty-third street, have taken a duplex apartment at 113 East Seventy-second street.

Mrs. Charles M. Foulke has returned to Washington and is temporarily at the Grafon.

Recital of Season at Town Hall.

Special Cable to The New York Herald. Copyright, 1922, by The New York Herald.

When Emilio de Gogorza comes to town with a program of songs those who go down to the houses of a thousand concerts to make known the doings therein rejoice and are exceedingly glad, for they know that the gods will be kind to them and they will live for an hour and a half with art. Mr. de Gogorza gave his first recital of the present season yesterday afternoon in Town Hall, and, of course, the place was full. The singer never created a sensation. He would never know how to do it. He merely taught music lovers to love him and his ways years ago, and affection follows him wherever he walks.

It was with Handel's "Where Ever You Walk" that he began his program yesterday. Many fingers deliver this lyric, but too many of them make it sound as if the fair one apostrophized in it hopped rather than walked, and as if those poetic trees which crowded into the shade were being somewhat rudely shaken by the wind.

Mr. de Gogorza finished his classic group of two numbers with the air of Thomas from "Iphigenie en Tauride."

The second group consisted of four songs of Schumann, all beautifully sung. "Widmung," with which the group concluded, had to be repeated. Mr. de Gogorza did not put any German lyrics and the recital suffered from the omission. He needs such compositions to reveal one of the most admirable sides of his many sided art. He sings German songs so that they sound German, just as he sings French to sound French and Spanish to sound Spanish.

In fact, Mr. de Gogorza in addition to being a technician of the first order and possessing a warm and beautiful voice still as fresh as it was a dozen years ago, is a consummate stylist.

After the Schumann numbers came some indifferent songs by Griffes, of which the "Old Song Recital" was repeated. To the group was added as an encore number Bruno Hühns's stirring "Invictus," one of the most popular of all American songs. In the French group "La Complainte de la Guir" one of Mr. de Gogorza's familiar lyrics, was redebanded. In this section the Schumann numbers came.
